- 1 Though jobs opportunities I was able to get better in my writing skills and job interviews.
- 2 This outcome has influenced to think more outside the box when working on Daily life skills or with classes and homework.

3	The general writing classes is the first place where critical thinking has to be applied for me. it have greatly improved the able to critical think about the malrals in my courses.
4	Sitting Bull's classes definitely helped me become better at oral and written communication through classes like speech and composition. Before my speech class I had no prior experience talking in front of a crowd, and it definitely helped me become a little more comfortable doing that. I feel that there's always room for improvement but I think that my improved communication skills will definitely help me going forward.
5	Sbc provided ways for better communication by having the opportunity to speak to students at a High School. Also, having the opportunity to be a part of SBC wellness club. Being a part of the club meant sharing ideas and using critical thinking.
6	SBC has helped me get scholarships in order to attend SBC.
7	It was revealed in my SOC 120 class and through our textbook chapters I felt I learned alot about myself.
8	In the majority of my classes that I've taken at SBC, I was given the opportunity to think about questions and/or situations. My instructors would give us a question/situation and we would have a couple of minutes or so to think about what we would do in that situation, or how we would answer the question given. I think this was a great opportunity to sharpen my critical thinking skills.
9	In my educational ECE and EED classes helped me with my written and oral communication, critical thinking. Writing all my observation papers and essays.
10	I was presented with and guided through the process of proper written and oral communication on paper as well as in person.
11	I need to learn to communicate better in writing. I feel that I have adequate technical and critical thinking skills. and can communicate well.
12	I learned through Sitting Bull College that as a student it is you alone is in control of your academic venture, and if you are serious about it, the college has an amazing set of tools and staff willing to help. You just have to be creative and constructive about it, which requires a fair amount of critical thinking. There we're times when it could be challenging for one reason or another, but no matter what the reason, I've found that with skills in communication can really help to overcome adversity.
13	I learned to read and write at a higher level throughout my time here at Sitting Bull College. I can speak my thoughts clearly and am able to present them to an audience as well, which I have proven at the AIBL conference. I also have really good grades so that should show that I can write a pretty good paper when needed.
14	I have begun to author a book about my great great lala Chief Straighthead. I attribute that to my journey with Sitting Bull College.
15	I didn't speak much when I first started out at SBC. I realized just recently that I have been a lot more talkative to people in my classes, and in my instructors. Some examples that helped me overcome this was when I had a question on a assignment. I had to either ask my classmates, and my instructors to help me understand what I need help with.
16	During my time at SBC I was exposed to situations where I was challenged mentally and it developed my technical and critical thinking skills. Many of my classes kept me on my toes with the knowledge being given to me. This has assisted me in achieving my educational goals because it kept be striving to learn more and motivated to put the work in to obtain the knowledge.
17	During electrical and building trades courses the students are evaluated during the hands-on class whether they are able to assess the situation given by the instructor if the student can use critical thinking skills to figure out how to complete a task without the instructor and only with other students verbally and while reading the instructions given by the instructor.
18	Doing the homework working through assignments and it was a structured class that I enjoyed learning from as for learning how to do a Resume. The class was a great experience for me as I have never been in a graduation, I got my GED when I was 23 and I only went as far as the 8th grade. I have also learned the importance of communication between everyone and how to not do things in workplaces I have left many jobs over me being upset over things not being done right and I now see I shouldn't have. I will apply the skills i have learned in my nursing career.
19	Critical thinking skills was introduced to me this semester during my SOC 120 HY class.

1	When I came to sitting bull college, I was scared I wasn't going to make it as I had to drive a long way to do this and I would need help at times with gas and food, they helped me and I never missed a day unless I had to I loved being treated like an individual not a number.
2	Throughout life we need to take on a role of leadership to some extent. In any setting in life we need to be ethical and dependable. Some jobs require high levels of responsibility and money management. We need to always be dependable and show respect to all who we work with. Weather they are coworkers and the public and those who we serve.
3	Through the first year, graduation and beyond, and many of the ocheti sakoin culture classes. These classes have shown me many different kinds of healthy leader ship.
4	This happened with me in Algebra, I wanted to pass that class so bad; the only leadership I needed to prove was to myself, I'm not the strongest when it comes to math. But I achieved that goal!
5	SBC was and still is very helpful when it comes to registering for classes.
6	Outcome two has helped me to stay on track with my studies and performance either at classes or work.
7	It was revealed in our textbook and I feel I learned a lot not only about myself but about work etiquette.
8	In most of my environmental classes, we were given the opportunity to be able to lead and/or be in "charge" of our peers to kind of put us in the situation of how we can lead. Also every one of my instructors i've had, have treated me with respect, and of course it's only natural that I treat them with the same attitude that they've greeted me with. The classes ive taken are also very, do most things on your own time kind of thing. I feel like that goes to show that the instructors should be able to trust us and our ability to be responsible. All of this has set me up in a great way, and I greet every course I have now with confidence as I know I have the responsibility to get through it.
9	I was enrolled in classes that gave me opportunities to help my fellow classmates, as well as my environmental science courses where I got to help demonstrate techniques used in the field collecting samples. These opportunities helped to break me out of my shell and made me realize how I want to continue to be a responsible, dependable and respectful individual.
10	I was able to get internships that sometimes require me to take a leadership role and most time there is a big responsibility that come with it.
11	I have not had any serious altercations with anyone on campus and I mostly keep to myself anyway. At the AIBL conference I showed composure, trustworthiness, and respectable behavior.
12	I have been offered contracts to work in Cultural revitalization efforts on my reservation. I am honored and honestly never expected such things until I became an elder. I accept anything asked of me by my elders, so when i was asked to join them, I humbling walk gently in all the beauty of this journey.
13	I had to practice this outcome during my business class last semester by stepping into leadership and read and learn about ethical rules and behaviors in a professional setting.
14	I completed a total off 120 hours of internship while attending SBC, and I did so with no guidance or opportunities to further my knowledge. This displayed responsibility, leadership, and integrity.
15	I always tried to be respectful already. I am not sure if I have shown any improvement on the leadership skill because most of my classes where online.

16	Honestly, I think it's just being around other people that want to learn that helped the most. Being around other people who are actually there to learn, that are respectful, things like that. I think of it as a you are who you surround yourself with type of deal.
17	During the time I was in the Electrical and Building Trades programs I have helped other students/classmates with the task given by instructors to assure we all are on the same page when it comes to completing the task given and making sure other students and myself are dependable on each other knowing we could complete tasks and assignments on time.
18	Clubs, I learned a lot on how to hone these skills from clubs. Particularly the Two Spirit, AIBL, Culture and Geek Oyate clubs. I've had roles in the clubs from marketing to secretary to President and Vice-President. The clubs actually just put on a dance last night that went great. It was a lot of fun. Being active in student life actually did help me learn a lot on how to be dependable and respectful in more ways than one that I don't think I'll forget. I guess all I can say is that I've learned to have confidence in my abilities to move in an ethical and responsible manner, which hopefully will help me get to graduation in the future.
19	Being responsible by showing up to class, getting homework done and on time, and being respectful by being quiet while SBC provided speakers.

1	jobs require employees to use good judgement and to have the ability to work independently. Some employers have more diversity and we need to show respect for all regardless of race and disability or other differences.
2	While I was in Building Trades, the instructor would have the students do some work independently without the instructor's assistance while he observed to view how we would work independently and cooperatively with each other. Our work ethics were tested everyday while we were building a new house. This discipline has taught us how to manage our work quality for the job/task we were given to complete. The knowledge I've learned on how to function independently and cooperatively assisted me with the achievement of my Certificate.
3	This was revealed to me when I had to ask my classmates, or my instructors for help on a subject I needed help with. I always tried to work independently, and cooperative with my classmates, and my instructors.
4	This helped me in my biology class where we worked together in groups, allowing us to come out of our shell's and TALK... break that bubble to prepare us for the real world.
5	The staff was very helpful in achieving my goals and exposing me to opportunities in schools and jobs.
6	The smaller class sizes definitely helped with functioning independently, and for the cooperatively, I feel like a majority of the classes I have taken have had at least one group assignment. When it comes to school or work, it's important to be able to work alone and/or in a group.
7	The first year and the graduation and beyond show me skills to function corporately with in many diverse work environments. Through showing my that people have different personaletys and needs in a working environment. And many different examples of how to resolve work place conflict.
8	The college has given me a lot of knowledge and with this i will keep going and encouraging others to join Sitting Bull College.
9	Many times in class I had to work with other students to complete assignments, I had no problem helping them out when they didn't understand something. I also tend to work alone so the skills to function independently come naturally to me.
10	I was presented with an abuse of power and an unconscientious decision to prevent me from furthering my education. This pushed me to cooperate with my superiors lack of understanding and thrive in toxicity.
11	I think I'll tie my answers from the first two outcomes together here. The first outcome taught me how to think critically in new and old environments. This in turn taught me how to consider myself and become aware of my own independence when taking in new information. I can operate in an environment that may be unfamiliar to me, as well as with people who I may not be familiar, and still maintain my level of work ethic that I know works best for me. The second outcome taught me how to best do that while working with other people. I had to learn how to maintain a level of independent thought while trying to incorporate a variety of new ideas. The clubs at SBC are full of potential and people who are willing to share their ideas. It can be really exciting and it's a learning process on how to work best to put ideas together to achieve a goal. It's definitely not boring and it's a crucial part of becoming a fully functional person.
12	I learned this in our textbook and I feel more confident about my workplace after learning about it because I didn't learn how function really well with others, other than myself and I had a job during this chapter and I learned good things.
13	I have always had a work ethic background before entering SBC. SBC helped to improve my knowledge with different functions.
14	I am so grateful for the instructors because they helped me and made sure I passed the classes at SBC
15	I am adaptable to any situation. I think if an individual cannot adapt to their surroundings, work effectively and efficiently, then the world of work will be hard. So, I adapt.
16	College is different from high school in many ways. In college I learned that one of the biggest areas I had to work on myself with involved my work ethic. It was hard to get used to functioning so independently but once I got the hang of it I realized how grateful I was to learn these skills. I learned to always be early for class, to finish the work I start, to be more productive. Though I am still learning I know it will be easier for me to transition into different work environments with these skills I learned at SBC.
17	Being a part of the Nursing program gave me an opportunity to work with others and work alone. In both experiences, I was able to learn more about myself. At the beginning of my freshman year of college, there were classes that gave me an opportunity to work as a team with other students and figure out a solution.
18	As a student at SBC we have the responsibility of doing our own work and turning it in on time.
19	Again, this was demonstrated through my instructors. I was never "babied" by any of my instructors at SBC, and they made it clear that if I were having trouble, or needed to set up a meeting with them, all I had to do was email/ask. It was always up to me to stay on task with my courses, and I loved having that freedom.

1	When is the SBC wacipi? We haven't fully immersed in the Native American culture yet. This is never ending. We practice our values everyday. To walk with wolakota in my heart means having respect for others and living and treating ourselves and others well. Understanding that we all come from the same commonality of humanity and its struggle for balance.
2	This was revealed to me through NA Studies, I've really learned a lot through Ms. Hellen's class.
3	The bookstore was and still is a big help when getting registered for courses.
4	The Native American studies classes I've taken definitely helped me better understand the history behind Native American cultures. I think understanding and appreciating a culture is important when it comes to meeting new people or anytime you're in a place with diverse population. I plan on going to a bigger institution after I graduate, and it's important to respect other people's backgrounds.
5	The Native American courses that I had the privilege of participating in, like Native American language and Native American History have been very helpful and knowledgeable for me due to the fact that I had little knowledge of my own Native American heritage. After taking these courses I now have a better knowledge and understanding of my heritage and will continue to learn my heritage and culture as my education continues here at Sitting Bull College.
6	SBC has opened my mind to seeing the diversity in the Different tribes that SBC has taken in. And learned bits and pieces of the Lakota, Dakota and Nakota language aspects.
7	Participating and taking the Native American classes gave me an opportunity to speak and share what knowledge I knew.

8	Outcome will be i can keep going further in my career as nursing LPN and Communcation and dependability is a must in any career.
9	My ocethi sakowin culture 1 class has taught me and helped me appreciate the Native American studies.
10	I'll sort of tie all three outcomes together and keep it simple. I grew up in Fort Yates. I knew about SBC for almost all my life and it wasn't until I turned 30 that I realized that it's probably the greatest educational experience any Native could ask for. Not just SBC, but tribal colleges in general. They are the hub of education for so much of our people living on or off the rez. They've helped so many people and they'll continue to do so because they'll always be a need to pass knowledge. That's engrained in the spirit of all of the tribes of my family. I can't wait until we start seeing full scale rez universities. I believe that that day isn't too far away. Might as well get prepared for it because if our culture as Native People is going to continue to thrive then we need to learn as much as we can from each other while we can. What better place than to do that right at home, in my opinion that is.
11	I was expose to my dad side and I was able to meet other family members, food and language as well.
12	I struggle with learning Lakota. this stems from my mother. It is important to learn history of our culture. Historically this was taken away.
13	I practice my culture everyday and try to learn new things about it everyday. I took the Lakota classes at the college and I definitely learned a lot.
14	I learned how this incorporated into cultures because it is really similar to workforce culture in a sense
15	I grew up very involved in the Lakota culture however, I did not know how much of our value systems could be integrated into schooling. Going to a college that was built on a foundation of Lakota values and knowledge gave me a further understanding and appreciation for my culture as well as other Native American cultures.
16	I always did have a good understanding, and apprectiation for native american cultures. I knew most of what they taught me in classes already. I knew very little of the language.
17	I already had an understanding and appreciation of our culture prior to attending SBC. Although, the majority of my courses did a great job of adding in little snippets of culture here and there. I think SBC lacks in activities in celebrating Native American week and other events related though.
18	Coming back to Standing Rock has helped me ground myself and allowed me to comprehend who I was and where I come from. I have always had a deep respect for my culture and if it weren't for the NAS courses at SBC, I don't think SBC continued to the furthering of any new appreciation for my culture.
19	Apparition, understanding and curiosity to learn more about Native American culture has been apart of every class I attended at SBC.
